DEMON PRIDE WEEK PARADE

SHANGHAI 1947

DATELINE: Shanghai, Republic of China
DATE: 23rd JUNE 1947
FROM: UP INTERNATIONAL PRESS, Llyod Smith-Jones, Shanghai Station Chief
RE: Shanghai Celebrates its first Demon Pride Week with a colorful parade through the International Business District

A recent judicial decision ignited a significant movement led by Honorable Zhang Pengchun, alongside a coalition of legal scholars, esteemed members of the Shanghai Commercial Commerce Community (SCCC), human rights advocates, and surprisingly, a senior representative from the National Revolutionary Army (NRA).
Together, they demanded the urgent liberation of several ethnic minorities, historically labeled as non-citizens by the Kuomintang (KMT) due to their ancestral designation as "Demon" or "Devil" People.

Last week, during a highly publicized press conference in Nanjing, Xia Qin, the President of China's Supreme Court, made a significant announcement regarding citizenship rights for certain ethnic minorities, controversially labeled as "demon" minorities.
In a surprising decision reached by the Supreme Court justices, it was determined that these groups would be granted immediate citizenship, enabling them to participate in the upcoming national elections and offering them the opportunity to enlist in the National Revolutionary Army.

Xia Qin promptly issued a legal directive mandating the release of all ethnic demons from the purgatory internment camps, with particular emphasis on the notorious "Bottomless Pit" prison complex.

The newly elected mayor of Shanghai, the Honorable KC Wu, responding to the encouragement of the city's business and social leaders, proclaimed the inaugural Demon Pride Week.

After thorough discussions with the Chief Inspector of the Bureau of Public Safety, Honorable Huang Zhenwu, and military leader General Xuan Tiebu regarding security measures, he announced a grand parade to honor the emancipation of the ethnic demon community.

This vibrant celebration will traverse the main boulevards of the historic Shanghai International Concession, marking a day dedicated to peace and harmony, as the city embraces the reintegration of these ethnic minorities into the fabric of polite society.
Mayor KC Wu reassured the community of a vigilant presence from both police and military forces, dedicated to preventing any incidents of political or racial violence, as well as threats from communist factions.
In a bold move, he reached out to the communist leader, Liu Xiao, proposing a truce for the day of the parade, while simultaneously inviting all communist resistance groups in the Shanghai District to participate in the festivities.

A representative from the Shanghai Foreign Business League announced that they will distribute a flyer detailing the event schedule, the parade route, and a variety of other activities and locations involved in Demon Pride Week.

The KitKat Gentlemen's Lounge is rolling out an enticing offer this week, featuring a two-for-one drink special exclusively for members of the Demon Community.

Additionally, on parade day, anyone donning traditional ethnic demon attire will be treated to a complimentary English Breakfast, making it a festive occasion for all who participate.
